World of Warcraft Enchanting Guide

Enchanting is one of the most powerful yet often overlooked professions in World of Warcraft. While blacksmithing, alchemy, and tailoring get a lot of spotlight, enchanting provides the hidden edge that can turn a good piece of gear into a game changing item. Whether you're a new player looking to learn the ropes, a veteran wanting to fine tune your raid setup, or a guild leader managing an economy, this guide will walk you through every facet of enchanting – from the basics to advanced strategies, materials, and the best enchantments for every playstyle.

Why Enchanting Matters

Enchanting offers a unique blend of flexibility and impact:

- Cost effective upgrades – A single enchant can add a significant bonus without the need for expensive gold or rare drops.
- Customization – Players can tailor gear to match their role, class, or even personal preference.
- Economy driver – High tier enchantments are in constant demand, creating a thriving market for players who master the craft.
- Skill progression – The enchanting talent tree rewards specialization, allowing you to focus on either PvP or PvE.

Because of these advantages, mastering enchanting is essential for anyone serious about maximizing their character's potential.

Getting Started: The Foundations of Enchanting

1. Choosing the Profession

Enchanting is a dual profession that pairs well with a variety of other classes. The most common combinations are:

- Enchanting & Tailoring – Ideal for cloth based classes (Mage, Priest, Rogue).
- Enchanting & Blacksmithing – Great for plate users (Warrior, Paladin, Death Knight).
- Enchanting & Alchemy – Provides access to consumables and buffs.

Each pairing offers synergistic benefits, but the key is to choose a secondary profession that complements your primary gear type.

2. Skill Levels and Talent Trees

Enchanting skill ranges from 1 to 300. The talent tree splits into two branches:

1. Enhancement (PvP) – Focuses on adding damage, healing, or utility to gear.
2. Reputation (PvE) – Provides powerful buffs and defensive enchantments.

Deciding which branch to invest in depends on your playstyle. Many players keep both branches unlocked to stay versatile.

3. Gathering Materials

Enchanting requires a variety of reagents. The most common ones include:

- Enchanting Vials (e.g., Vial of the Void, Vial of the Sun)
- Enchanting Scrolls (e.g., Scroll of the Sun, Scroll of the Void)
- Enchanted Dust (e.g., Enchanted Dust, Enchanted Core)
- Enchanted Stone (e.g., Enchanted Stone)
- Enchanting Dust (e.g., Enchanted Dust, Enchanted Core)

These reagents are typically found in the Enchanting tab of the Vendormenu or purchased from the Auction House. Some are dropped by specific mobs or crafted by other professions.

The Enchanting Process: Step by Step

1. Selecting the Item

Before you can enchant, you must have a piece of gear that is compatible with the enchantment. Each enchant has a list of allowed gear types (e.g., Weapon, Head, Chest, Feet). Make sure the item matches the enchant's restrictions.

2. Choosing the Enchantment

Open the Enchantingwindow and browse the list of available enchants. The list is sorted by rarity, which is a good indicator of the enchant's power. Use the search bar to filter by keyword (e.g., "Damage", "Health", "Stamina").

3. Consuming Materials

Drag the chosen enchant onto the gear slot. The game will prompt you to confirm the use of reagents. If you have the required materials, the enchant will be applied, and you'll receive a new item with the enchantment.

4. Managing Your Enchanting Inventory

Keep your enchanting inventory organized by grouping reagents by type and rarity. Use the Sort byfeature in the vendor interface to quickly locate needed items. A well managed inventory saves time and reduces the risk of accidentally using the wrong reagents.

Best Enchantments for Every Playstyle

1. PvE: The Core Enchants

For raid and dungeon content, these enchantments provide the most consistent benefit:

- Weapon: Enchanted Rune of the Sun – Adds powerful spell damage.
- Head: Enchanted Rune of the Void – Increases spell crit.
- Chest: Enchanted Rune of the Sun – Boosts stamina and health.
- Feet: Enchanted Rune of the Void – Provides agility and stamina.

These enchantments are staples for most classes and provide a solid foundation for any raid build.

2. PvP: The Tactical Enchants

In battlegrounds and arenas, the following enchantments can give you a decisive edge:

- Weapon: Enchanted Rune of the Sun – Adds critical strike and damage.
- Head: Enchanted Rune of the Void – Grants increased dodge and spell power.
- Chest: Enchanted Rune of the Void – Provides spell critical chance and stamina.
- Feet: Enchanted Rune of the Sun – Adds haste and agility.

3. Transmog: The Cosmetic Enchantments

While not providing any stat benefit, enchantments can enhance the look of your gear. For example, Enchanted Rune of the Sun on a helm can give a subtle glow that matches your character's aesthetic.

Tier Specific Enchants: Unlocking the Full Potential

As you progress through the game, you'll encounter tier specific enchantments that are only available after you reach certain skill milestones or complete specific quests. Here's a quick rundown:

- Tier 1 (Skill 30–60): Basic enchants like Enchanted Rune of the Sun.
- Tier 2 (Skill 60–120): More advanced options such as Enchanted Rune of the Void.
- Tier 3 (Skill 120–180): High impact enchants like Enchanted Rune of the Sun with additional bonuses.
- Tier 4 (Skill 180–240): Rare enchants that provide unique buffs.
- Tier 5 (Skill 240–300): The pinnacle of enchanting, offering the best possible stat boosts.

Keep an eye on the Enchantingwindow to see which tier you're approaching, and plan your material acquisition accordingly.

Enchanting Economy: How to Profit and Save

Enchanting items often fluctuate in value based on raid progression and PvP events. Use the Auction House to track prices for high tier enchantments. TheEnchantingtab in the Auction House offers a quick way to see current listings.

Reagents like Enchanted Dust and *Enchanted Core*are frequently in demand. If you have surplus materials, consider selling them on the Auction House to generate gold.
